A new brand identity

A message from David Henderson, Tobermore (Owner/Managing Director)

It always makes me immensely proud when I see Tobermore products used in major projects around the UK, when I hear customers talking about the great service they have received and when I see our name well presented in our markets.

It is very encouraging that after more than 75 years in business we are still excited about the future for Tobermore. We are continuing to invest for growth in 2019 and beyond.

In January we started the roll out of our new brand identity. Our new logo was the first part of a process to present Tobermore to the market better.

More recently we have updated the design of our website as well as social media channels, the rest of the brand changes will continue to roll out throughout 2019.

Of course some things at Tobermore don't change.

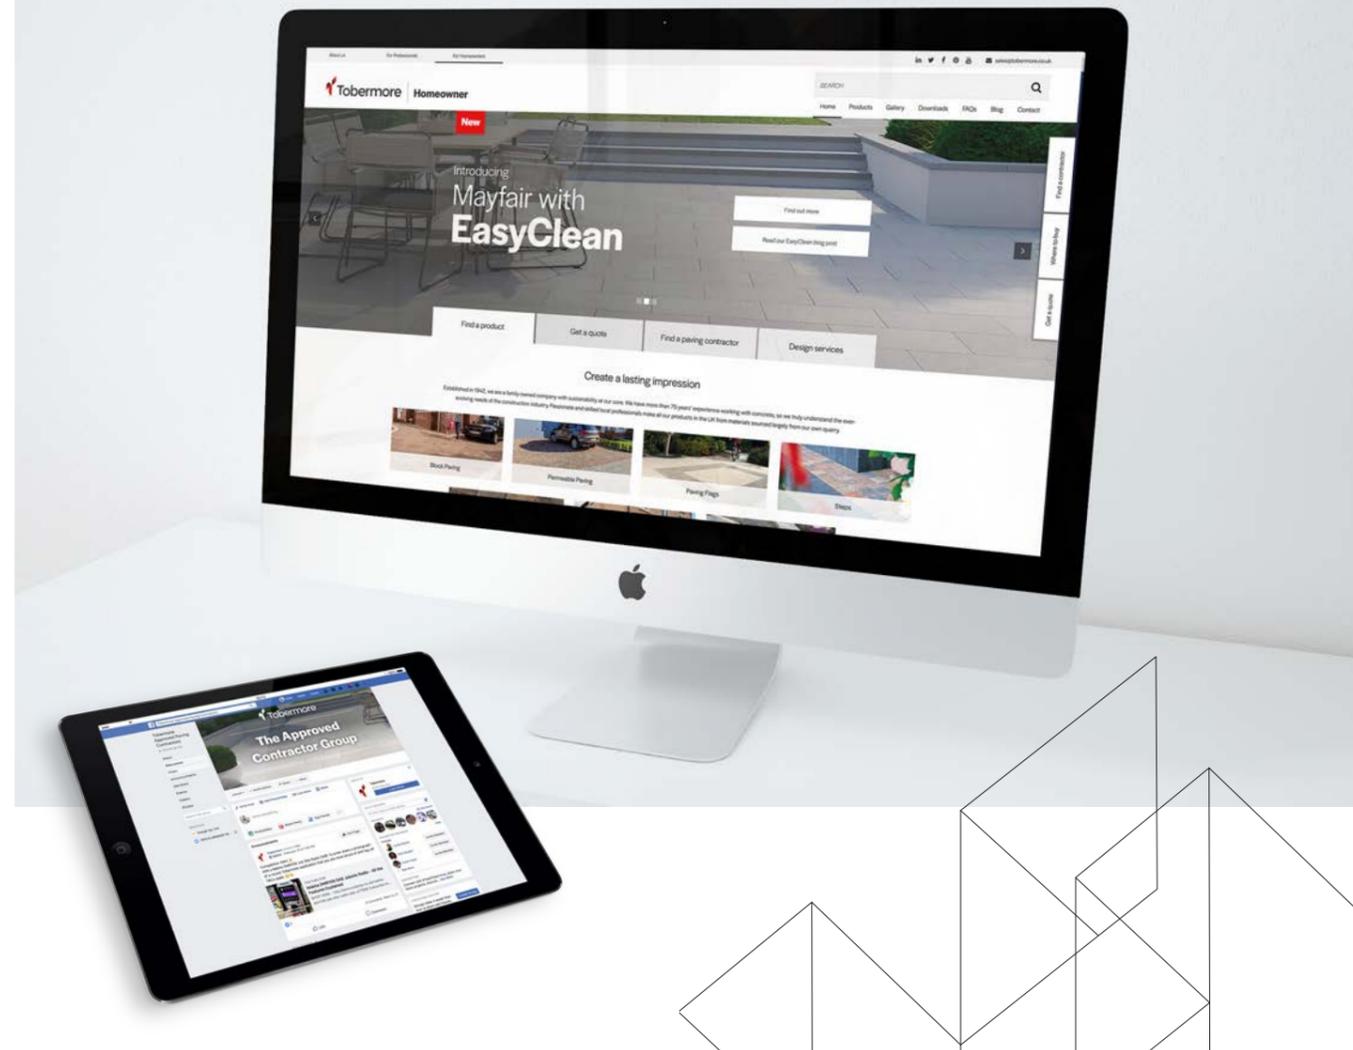

Our commitment to excellence in how we deal with customer enquiries, how we service their orders and of course how we take care to produce excellent products remains as strong as ever. This is what Tobermore is known for, and I take immense pride in that.

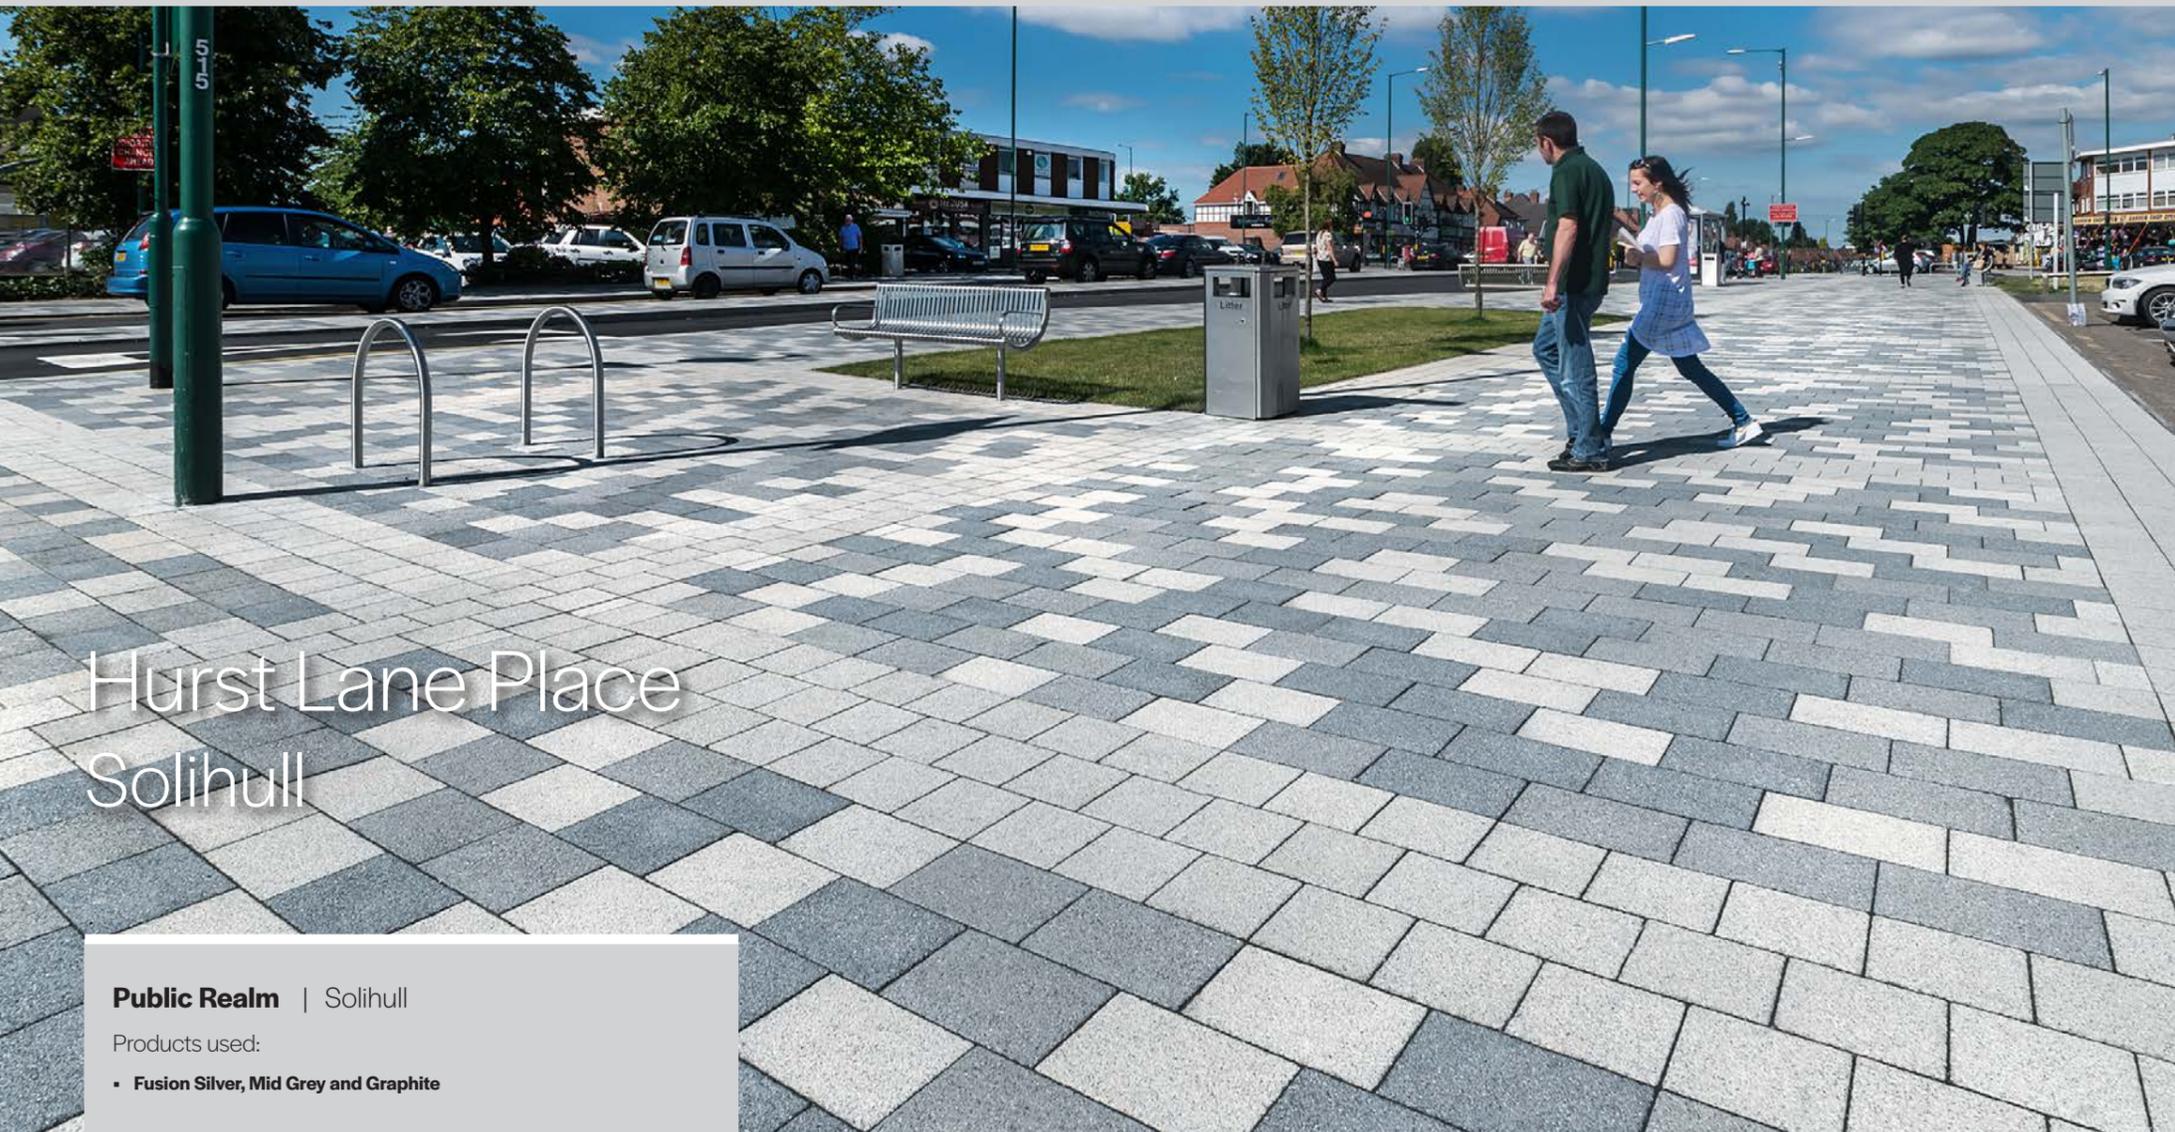

Of course, continuous improvement is at the heart of Tobermore – it has brought us to where we are today.

We are investing not only in the best machinery to make innovative products but also in new sales teams to get out and meet more architects, designers, housebuilders and contractors.

So it also makes sense that we should be investing in the latest marketing techniques to help drive this growth by telling people just how good Tobermore's products are.

Solihull Council seek block paving system for Hurst Lane Place Regeneration.

When Solihull Borough Council was looking for a block paving system for the refurbishment of Hurst Lane Place, they sought a solution that would meet both the aesthetics and performance of the busy urban site.

Solihull Council also had a demanding schedule for the project, and required block paving that could be delivered without a lengthy lead time.

The scheme addressed a number of issues – to improve road safety, provide additional and improved on-street parking, make the area more convenient and accessible for pedestrians, and enhance the appearance of the streets.

“We would happily recommend Tobermore products to any architect, contractor or developer seeking a reliable hard landscaping solution with visual appeal.”

Chris Morton

Senior Engineer at Solihull Borough Council

Creating a striking landscape for a business quarter.

HLM Architects sought high quality, robust and cost effective paving to create a striking landscape at The Square, a new 68,851 square ft. business quarter in Leatherhead, Surrey. Joe Harries, Associate at HLM Architects, explained that his aim in designing The Square was “to create a contemporary office environment within a high quality and attractive landscape setting.”

“Conceptually, we tried to create a contemporary, inspiring and inviting centralised hard landscaped amenity enclosed by both proposed and existing soft landscape infrastructure. The formal epicentre is the main focus of the scheme, with a large and striking public art feature, high quality paving, seating and subtle lighting.”

“We were looking for a range of quality products that were robust, aesthetically pleasing and cost effective, and we found that Tobermore were ahead of their peers in this area of the market.”

An aesthetic and functional hard landscaping solution for a luxurious housing scheme.

Junnell Homes Ltd developed Salterns Reach, a boutique style housing scheme in Prinsted, West Sussex. The design of the properties was inspired by the Arts and Crafts era of architecture.

The hard landscaping was hugely important as the developer was seeking products that would blend with the distinct style of the project whilst offering functional benefits.

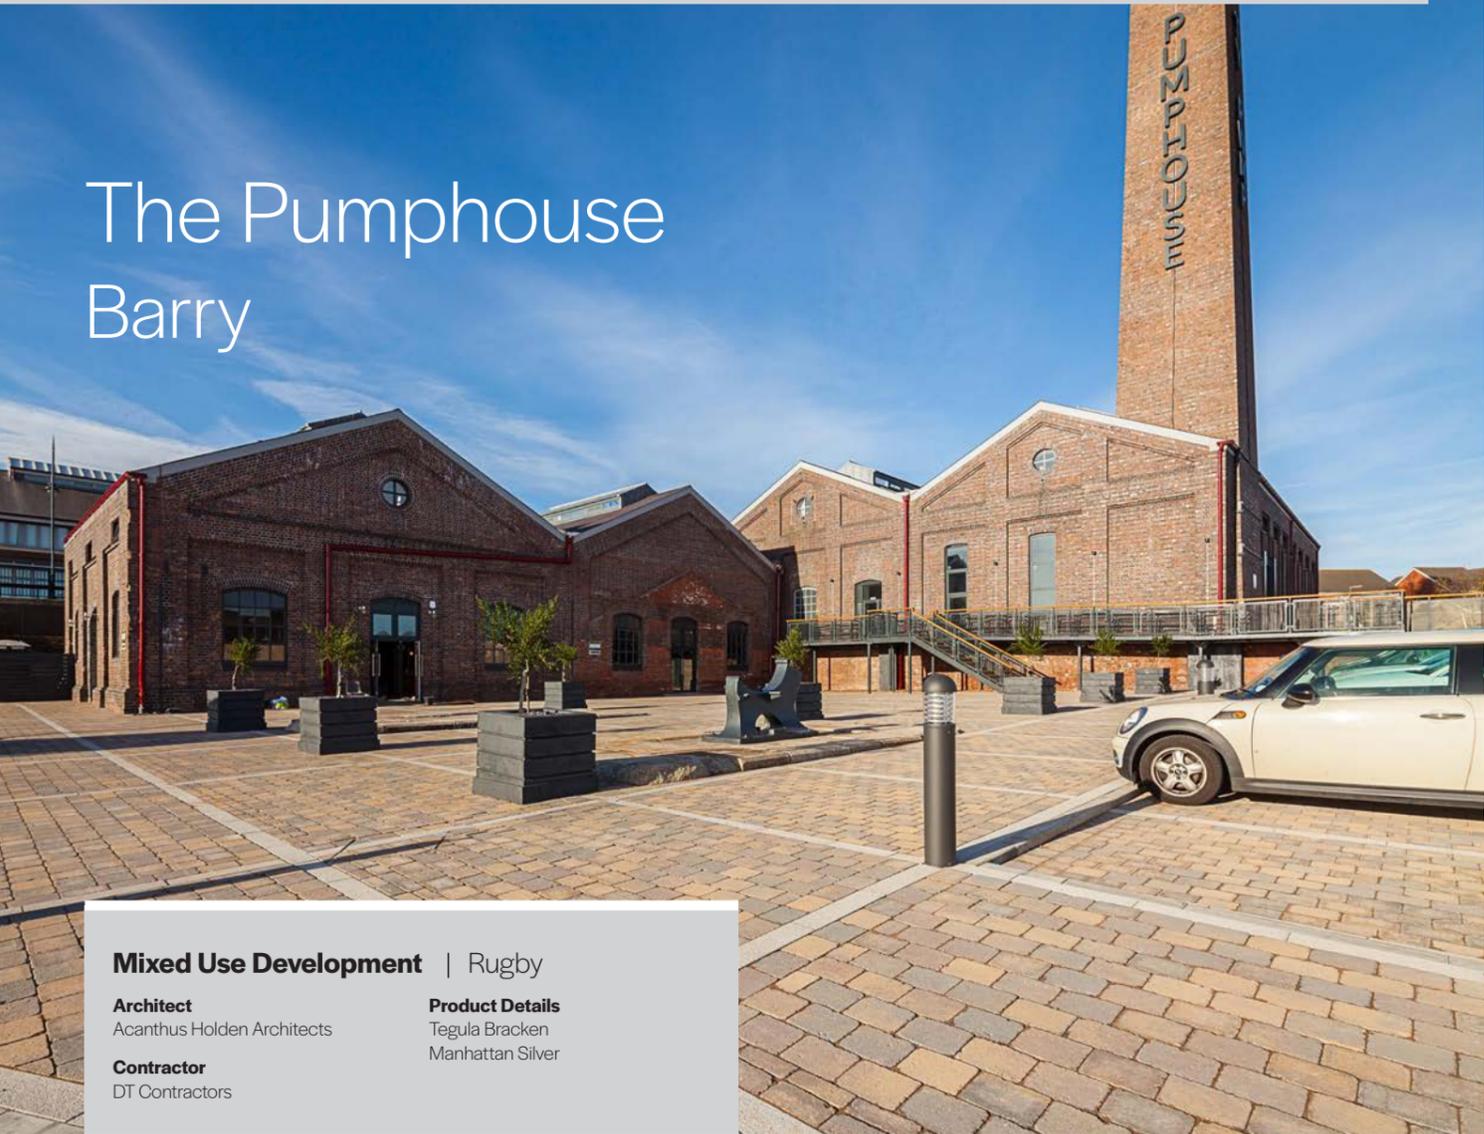

“The aesthetics and technical capabilities of the products met our design vision; hard-wearing, suited to purpose, easily repairable and offered design flexibility. We gladly recommend Tobermore paving products to anyone in the construction industry.”

Jonathan Bingham
Construction Director at Junnell Homes
